The Role of Voluntary Accreditation in the United States

One of the distinctive features of American education is that the development and maintenance of educational standards are the responsibilities of non-governmental, voluntary accrediting associations. The U.S. Office of Education recognizes this invaluable contribution which the voluntary accrediting associations have made to the development of educational quality in the Nation.

It is the policy of the Office of Education generally to support and encourage recognized voluntary accrediting associations in their respective activities, and to endorse their role as the primary agents in the development and maintenance of educational standards in the United States.

Foreword

This is the first annual publication of a list of postsecondary institutions and programs which are accredited or preaccredited by the regional and specialized agencies recognized by the U. S. Commissioner of Education. It replaces the quadrennial Accredited Higher Institutions, a compilation of higher education institutions accredited by nationally recognized accrediting agencies and by State agencies responsible for approving institutions of higher education within the various States.

The new publication differs from the earlier one in several respects. The coverage is broader, including accredited postsecondary specialized and vocational institutions as well as institutions of higher education. Also included are institutions that have attained a preaccredited status from those nationally recognized accrediting agencies with approved procedures for assigning such status. The publication does not include lists of institutions that are approved, recognized, classified, or licensed by State agencies authorized to perform these functions. It will be revised annually to record the changes that occur among accrediting agencies and the institutions and programs accredited or in a preaccredited status.

Accredited Postsecondary Institutions and Programs will provide information to officers of postsecondary educational institutions and guidance counselors and students at the secondary and postsecondary level. Also it may be of interest to Federal and State agencies, as well as to non-governmental agencies and persons in the United States and abroad who are interested in education.

The Office of Education is grateful to the officers of the regional and specialized accrediting agencies who supplied the information contained in this bulletin.

INTRODUCTION

Unlike most other countries of the world, the United States has no ministry of education or other centralized authority which exercises national control over educational institutions. The States assume varying degrees of control but permit institutions of higher education to operate with considerable autonomy. As a consequence, institutions vary widely in the character and quality of their programs. In this country, private educational associations of regional or national scope have established criteria and procedures to evaluate institutions or programs to determine whether or not they are operating at basic levels of quality. This voluntary, nongovernmental, peer evaluation in education is known as accreditation.

The best available method of ascertaining the general standing or quality of a postsecondary educational institution in the United States is to examine its accredited status. In general, there are two kinds of accreditation, institutional and specialized. Institutional accreditation at the higher education level is a function of the six regional accrediting associations which together cover the United States, the Canal Zone, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. Institutional accreditation applies to the total educational institution and, for the most part, includes only those institutions offering a core of liberal arts and/or general education. This kind of accreditation signifies that the institution as a whole is achieving its objectives satisfactorily. While the accrediting procedures of the several regional associations differ somewhat in detail, their rules of eligibility, basic policies, and standards are similar.

Specialized accreditation is conducted by a number of national organizations, each representing a professional, technical, occupational, or specialized area such as architecture, cosmetology, home study education, pharmacy, or social work. Specialized accreditation, which applies to professional and vocational schools or programs, is aimed at protecting the public against educational incompetence. Unlike the regional associations, the specialized accrediting associations demonstrate variations among their criteria for accreditation, definitions of eligibility, and operating procedures.

In view of the differing emphases of the two kinds of agencies, accreditation of an institution as a whole should not be interpreted as being equivalent to specialized accreditation of each of the several parts or programs of an institution. Institutional accreditation does not validate a specialized program in the same manner and to the same extent as does specialized accreditation.

The accrediting procedure for both institutional and specialized agencies usually follows a pattern of five basic steps:

1. The accrediting agency, in collaboration with educational institutions, establishes standards.
2. The institution or program seeking accreditation prepares a self-evaluation study that measures its performance against the standards established by the accrediting agency.
3. A team selected by the accrediting agency visits the institution or program to determine firsthand if the applicant meets the established standards.
4. On the basis of evidence that the applicant meets its standards, the accrediting agency lists the institution or program in an official publication with other similarly accredited institutions or programs.
5. The accrediting agency periodically reevaluates the institutions or programs that it lists to ascertain that continuation of the accredited status is warranted.

While accreditation indicates that an institution meets certain established qualifications and educational standards, accreditation does not mean that a school is equally competent in every respect, nor does it imply automatic acceptance of an institution's graduates or course of study. Acceptance of students or graduates is always the prerogative of the receiving institution or employing organization, which sets its own admission or employment standards.

Nationally Recognized Accrediting Agencies and Associations

The U. S. Commissioner of Education is required, under the provisions of Public Law 82-550 and subsequent legislation, to publish a list of nationally recognized accrediting agencies and associations which he determines to be reliable authority as to the quality of education or training offered by educational institutions or programs. The following criteria for determining nationally recognized accrediting agencies and associations were evolved and published in the January 16, 1969, Federal Register, replacing the original statement published in 1952:

Criteria

The agency or association:

1. Is regional or national in the scope of its operations (Regional as used here means several States);
2. Serves a definite need for accreditation in the field in which it operates;
3. Performs no function that would be inconsistent with the formation of an independent judgment of the quality of an educational program or institution;
4. Makes publicly available (a) current information concerning its criteria or standards for accreditation, (b) reports of its operations, (c) lists of institutions or educational programs which it has accredited;
5. Encourages and gives staff guidance for institutional or program self-study prior to accreditation;
6. Secures sufficient and pertinent data concerning the qualitative aspects of an institution or educational program, and accredits only those institutions or programs which after on-site examinations are found to meet the published criteria for accreditation;
7. Has an adequate organization and effective procedures to maintain its operations on a professional basis. Among the factors to be considered in this connection are that the agency or association:
    (a) Clearly sets forth the scope of its accrediting activities, both as to geographical area and nature and type of institution or program fields covered;
    (b) Has financial resources, as shown by its audited financial statements, necessary to maintain accrediting operations in accordance with published policies and procedures;
    (c) Has clear, written definitions of and procedures for (1) the accrediting of institutions or programs, (2) placing them on a probationary status, (3) revoking accredited status, and (4) reinstating the accredited status of an institution or program;
    (d) Charges only reasonable fees;
    (e) Uses experienced and qualified examiners to visit institutions, to examine educational objectives, to inspect courses, programs, administrative practices, services, and facilities, and to prepare written reports and recommendations for evaluation by the agency or association—and causes such examination to be conducted under conditions that assure an impartial and objective judgment;
    (f) Evaluates an institution or program only with the specific authorization of the chief executive officer of the institution;
    (g) Provides for adequate consultation during the visit between the team of visitors and the faculty, administrative staff, and students;
    (h) As a result of the accreditation visit, furnishes a written report to the chief executive officer of the institution with comments on the institution's areas of strength, on the areas needing improvement, and on suggested means of improvement;
    (i) Provides the chief executive officer with an opportunity to comment upon the factual elements of the report of the visiting team before the agency or association takes action on it;
    (j) Evaluates the report of the team in the presence of a member of the team, preferably the chairman;
    (k) Provides a regular means whereby the institution may appeal to the final authority in the agency or association;
    (l) Reevaluates at reasonable intervals its accredited institutions, and educational programs;
8. If an agency has developed a preaccreditation status, it shall have adequate procedures and requirements for the award of such status, comparable to those employed for the award of accredited status;
9. Reviews at regular intervals the criteria by which it evaluates institutions or educational programs, in order that the criteria shall both support constructive analysis and emphasize factors of critical importance;
10. Has demonstrated not less than 2 years' experience as an accrediting agency;

11. Has gained acceptance of its criteria, methods of evaluation, and decisions, by educational institutions, practitioners, licensing bodies and employers throughout the United States;

12. Has demonstrated its capability and willingness to enforce ethical practices among the institutions and educational programs accredited by it.

In view of the criteria set forth above, it is unlikely that more than one association or agency will qualify for recognition (a) in a defined geographical area of jurisdiction or (b) in a defined field of program specialization within postsecondary or collegiate education.

The Commissioner's list of nationally recognized accrediting agencies and associations includes the commissions on institutions of higher education of six regional associations and 34 specialized agencies having responsibility for accrediting postsecondary institutions. The nationally recognized accrediting agencies and associations have no legal control over institutions of higher education. They merely promulgate standards of quality or criteria of institutional excellence and approve or admit to membership the institutions that meet those standards or criteria. The only power the accrediting agencies have is that of giving publicity to the list of institutions they have accredited. A list of accrediting agencies and associations recognized by the U.S. Commissioner of Education as of January 15, 1970, is included in this publication in Appendix A. Institutions accredited or preaccredited by these agencies may be eligible for participation in certain programs of Federal aid to education.

The Advisory Committee on Accreditation and Institutional Eligibility

This committee, comprised of 12 educators, assists the Commissioner of Education in fulfilling his obligations for eligibility determination under several laws, and advises him on broad policy matters and specific issues relating to accreditation and institutional eligibility for Federal funding. Specifically, the committee functions to consider all current and future policy relating to the responsibility of the Commissioner for the recognition and designation of accrediting agencies and associations, and to advise him concerning the relations of the Office of Education with accrediting agencies and associations, or other approval bodies which the Commissioner may request.

Part I

Institutions Accredited by the Commissions on Higher Education of the Nationally Recognized Regional Associations

Following the listing of each institution by State, dates of initial accreditation and of latest renewal or reaffirmation of accreditation are given. Where the first date is enclosed in parentheses, it represents accreditation prior to that reported by the agency now responsible for accrediting in the area in which the institution is located. The Western Association of Schools and Colleges, for example, assumed an accrediting function in 1948 and included on its original list institutions already accredited by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools and institutions which were either members of or approved by the Association of American Universities. The dates given do not reflect changes in the accredited status of an institution. The initial date of accrediting, whether as a 2-year or 4-year college, is reported. The information is current as of January 15, 1970.

For the most part, the information for this listing appears as provided by the regional associations, with only those editorial changes necessary for consistency of format. Any questions regarding the information contained in the listing can best be answered by writing directly to the appropriate commission of the regional association at the address listed below:

Accredited Curriculums Leading to First Degrees in Engineering, October 1969

Unless otherwise identified by notations, the engineering curriculums listed apply only to regular, 4-year, day curriculums terminating in a bachelor's degree.

All curriculums are listed by their qualifying adjective with the noun "Engineering" assumed to follow unless marked with * or unless "Engineering" stands alone, or is itself used as an adjective. The terminology requested by the institution is shown. However, curriculums which are not designated by "Engineering" used as a noun have been evaluated by the Council as "Engineering" with concentration in the field noted.

Engineers' Council for Professional Development
(See p. 68).

Accredited 2-year Programs in Engineering Technology,
October 1969

The curriculums described in the following list have a wide range of objectives and content but have the common purpose of preparing students for immediate usefulness in industrial employment at levels between those served by the engineering college and by the vocational or secondary level.

Curriculums designated as of technical institute type are offered by institutions falling within a number of categories; technical institutes, endowed or publicly supported; junior colleges; colleges of technology; divisions of colleges and universities; proprietary schools operated by individuals or corporations.

Accreditation does not imply that the curriculum is equivalent in content and purpose to other curriculums bearing the same or similar titles or that credits earned in the curriculum are transferable to engineering programs. Users of the list are urged to refer to catalogs of the institution concerned for descriptions of the programs offered. (Note: Listings indicate accreditation of resident day curriculums only unless there are specific notes covering evening, cooperative, or other special programs. See footnotes on p. 75.)

Part III

Institutions or Programs Having Preaccredited Status with Agencies Recognized by the U.S. Commissioner of Education for the Purpose of Establishing Satisfactory Assurance of Accreditation

Under the terms of the education legislation listed below, an institution is eligible for participation in certain Federal programs if, among other restrictions and requirements, it is accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association, or if the U. S. Commissioner of Education has determined that there is satisfactory assurance the institution will meet the accreditation standards of such an agency or association within a reasonable time:

Higher Education Act of 1965 (P.L. 89-329)
Higher Education Amendments of 1968 (P.L. 90-575)
Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963 (P.L. 88-204)
Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1963 (P.L. 88-129)
Health Professions Educational Assistance Amendments of 1965 (P.L. 89-290)
Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966 (P.L. 89-751)
Nurse Training Act of 1964 (P.L. 88-581)
Health Manpower Act of 1968 (P.L. 90-490)

The Commissioner shall receive application from an accrediting agency seeking recognition for its preaccreditation activities. To justify recognition by the Commissioner, the agency shall have established procedures and requirements for such activities comparable to those established for accreditation. The Commissioner shall find an institution having a preaccredited status as meeting requirements of academic eligiblity so long as the accrediting agency certifies it to be making progress toward achieving an accredited status.

The following nationally recognized accrediting bodies are recognized by the Commissioner as reliable authorities to establish the required satisfactory assurances through the award of preaccreditation status to educational institutions:

Regional Accrediting Associations

COMMISSION ON HIGHER EDUCATION,
MIDDLE STATES ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGES AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS

COMMISSION ON INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION,
NEW ENGLAND ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGES AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS

COMMISSION ON INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION,
NORTH CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGES AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS

COMMISSION ON HIGHER SCHOOLS,
NORTHWEST ASSOCIATION OF SECONDARY AND HIGHER SCHOOLS

COMMISSION ON COLLEGES,
SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGES AND SCHOOLS

ACCREDITING COMMISSION FOR SENIOR COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES,
ACCREDITING COMMISSION FOR JUNIOR COLLEGES,
WESTERN ASSOCIATION OF SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

Official recognition for establishing satisfactory assurance was granted the regional accrediting associations during the period 1963-1964. Each of the above associations currently awards the preaccreditation classification of Correspondent and Candidate. The classifications are defined as follows:

Candidate – "The classification given to a fully operative collegiate institution which, as attested to by a higher education commission of a regional accrediting agency, appears to be offering students on at least a minimally satisfactory level, the educational opportunities implied by its objectives . . . . [Candidacy] indicates that an institution is progressing steadily and properly toward accreditation, but does not assure or even imply accreditation"[1]

Correspondent – "The classification given to a collegiate institution not necessarily yet in operation, which has indicated its intent to work toward accreditation and which, having provided evidence of sound planning and the resources to implement these plans, appears to have the potential for attaining this goal within a reasonable time. Correspondent status is not accreditation nor does it assure or even imply accreditation."[2]

National Specialized Accrediting Associations

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF THEOLOGICAL SCHOOLS

The AATS preaccreditation classification, "Authorizing the Sending of Schedules," is assigned to theological schools which will be able to move on to accreditation within one or two years. Recognition of this status was accorded by the Commissioner in May 1969.

AMERICAN DENTAL ASSOCIATION

The ADA preaccreditation classification, "Accreditation Eligible," is assigned to developing dental schools and developing dental hygiene education programs. Recognition of this status was accorded by the Commissioner in September 1969.

AMERICAN OSTEOPATHIC ASSOCIATION

The AOA Preaccreditation classification, "Reasonable Assurance of Approval," is assigned to osteopathic colleges in their first three years of operation. Recognition of this status was accorded by the Commissioner in May 1969.

AMERICAN VETERINARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

The AVMA preaccreditation classification, "Reasonable Assurance of Accreditation," is assigned to those developing veterinary medical schools which the Association determines likely to become accredited once their programs are functioning. Recognition of this status was accorded by the Commissioner in September 1969.

COMMITTEE ON OCCUPATIONAL EDUCATION OF THE SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGES AND SCHOOLS

In June 1969, the Committee on Occupational Education was recognized by the Commissioner for the assignment of "Affiliate" status to non-collegiate post-secondary schools which have a clear emphasis on occupational education and are not eligible for membership in the Association's Commission on Colleges. The Committee views affiliation as the first stage of development for institutions seeking to improve and to gain regional accreditation when it becomes available.

ENGINEERS' COUNCIL FOR PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

The ECPD preaccreditation classifications of "Candidate" and "Preliminary Candidate" were officially recognized in the spring of 1965 for engineering technology programs. Preliminary Candidate status is awarded by ECPD to engineering technology programs existing as a plan. Candidate status is awarded to those programs which are operating but which have yet to graduate their first class. (It is the policy of the Council not to publish a list or release information on programs holding preaccredited status.)

LIAISON COMMITTEE ON MEDICAL EDUCATION

(Representing the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association and the Executive Council of the Association of American Medical Colleges)

The Committee's preaccreditation classification, "Reasonable Assurance of Accreditation," is assigned to developing medical schools. Recognition of this status was awarded by the Commissioner in 1964.

NATIONAL LEAGUE FOR NURSING

The NLN preaccreditation classification, "Reasonable Assurance of Accreditation," is assigned to developing programs in nursing education. Recognition of this status was awarded by the Commissioner in 1964 for diploma, associate degree, baccalaureate, and master's degree programs in nursing education.

Institutions of Higher Education Registered by the New York Board of Regents

The list of institutions accredited by the New York Board of Regents appears here in the directory because the activities of the Board, which is listed as a nationally recognized accrediting agency, do not enable it to be classified as a regional or specialized accrediting agency. The function of the State Education Department, the administrative arm of the Board, is to register individual curriculums in all institutions in New York State, and for any programs outside of the State which request such registration, on the basis of general standards of educational quality.

Special Notice

IN THE UNITED STATES no reputable institution of higher education confers degrees solely on the basis of correspondence study. The lax chartering laws in some States permit the existence of correspondence schools whose practices amount virtually to the sale of degrees. Such organizations are commonly referred to as degree mills. The Office of Education defines a degree mill as "an organization that awards degrees without requiring courses of instruction that all reputable educational institutions require before conferring degrees." Most of these degree mills operate solely by mail. In many cases staffs and plants do not even exist.

Degree mills are a serious threat to American educational standards in several ways. First they damage, by misleading the public, the legitimate and reputable correspondence schools which are filling an important and necessary role by providing correspondence study in the areas of vocational and adult education. Correspondence courses are also offered by some colleges and universities. But legitimate correspondence schools do not award degrees, and colleges and universities do not award degrees on the basis of correspondence courses alone. Second, degree mills defraud those who honestly believe that they have received recognition from a legitimate institution of higher education. Third, they lower American prestige abroad by deceiving foreign students. They cause legitimate American educational degrees to be under-valued because of the confusion overseas between bona fide institutions of higher education in the United States and the degree mills.

In view of the inadequacy and utter worthlessness of degree mills and their disservice to American higher education, the U.S. Office of Education strongly urges the public to be on guard against organizations advertising degrees based solely on correspondence study. Caution should also be exercised in evaluating degrees and other credentials, to ascertain whether or not they have been obtained from degree mills.
